

CONTENTS

CZESŁAW MIŁOSZ—ON BIRTH CENTENARY

| | |
|---|-----|
| Bartosz Krawczyk, Milosz and Andrzejewski—difficult dialogue | 9 |
| Marcin Wołk, Our language, their language. Still on the variants of “Campo di Fiori” | 21 |
| Kamil Dźwiniel, Poetic history and criticism of literature in perspective of Czesław Miłosz | 33 |
| Mirosław A. Supruniuk, Milosz ‘51 once again. The study about a profit from reading sources | 42 |
| Czesław Miłosz, In defense of writing. A letter to the editors | 47 |
| Andrzej Pomian-Dowmuntt, Writers are not “taboo” | 48 |
| [Karol Zbyszewski] Bywalec, Overheard | 54 |
| [Juliusz Sakowski] J. S., Madness and career | 55 |
| Mieczysław Grydzewski, Silva rerum | 57 |
| From the country: Milosz’s escape | 59 |
| Jan Bielatowicz, Czesław Miłosz’s logic | 60 |
| T. Baka, The crones of Windsor, that is a new fashion amongst Polish literary men | 63 |
| Michał Chmielowiec, “Applause section” | 64 |
| Aleksander Bregman, “Converted,” yet completely? “Milosz’s case” is not the problem of a new refugee | 66 |
| [Gustaw Herling-Grudziński] Lector, Foreign journals | 69 |
| Sergiusz Piasecki, Former “poputczik” Miłosz | 72 |
| Rafał Moczkoan, “I have no knowledge of who of us is ultimately right”—about two unknown letters from Miłosz-Chmielowiec correspondence | 79 |
| Ewa Dryglas-Komorowska, The importance of still life in Czesław Miłosz’s poetry and essay writing | 94 |
| Beata Dorosz, Czesław Miłosz in the circle of the Polish Institute of Arts and Sciences of America | 103 |
| Olga Glondys, The Congress for Cultural Freedom and the freedom of Czesław Miłosz: a reflection on involvement and way to the Truth in the age of Cold War | 123 |
| Joanna Jagodzińska-Kwiatkowska, A way to fulfillment: initiating senses in Czesław Miłosz’s poem “Orpheus and Eurydice” | 153 |
| Piotr Rambowicz, The experience of old age in the late creativity of Czesław Miłosz | 174 |
| Wiktor Trościanko, The laureate’s camp , elab. by Paulina Matysiak | 188 |
| Florian Śmieja, Three memories about Miłosz | 199 |

HISTORY OF LITERATURE

| | |
|---|-----|
| Jerzy Speina, The post-war fortunes of Polish soldiers in the West (in the light of the fictional creativity of the Second Emigration writers) | 205 |
| Joanna Kosturek, God in the poetry of Stanisław Barańczak—the Director of Fate and Witness of existence | 227 |
| Marta Dąbrowska, Ancient Greece in view of the 20th century culture. A reflection on the “Greek essays” by Stanialaw Vincenz | 238 |
| Marcin Lutomiński, Journalism as mission. On the Zygmunt Nowakowski’s emigration journalistic writing | 256 |

HISTORY

| | |
|--|-----|
| Bartosz Nowożycki, The activity of the Polish Institute of Arts and Sciences in the years 1942–1989 | 267 |
| Krzysztof Tarka, The PRL intelligence service on Kazimierz Sabbat’s trail | 289 |

HISTORY OF ART

| | |
|--|-----|
| Marta Chrzanowska-Foltzer, "Provençal conversations"—Polish painters in South France from 1909 up to this day..... | 295 |
| Swietłana Czerwonaja, Art in exile: the change of interpretative paradigms (the experience of Russia and East European countries arisen from the former Soviet Republics) | 316 |
| Joanna Klara Teske, Frogs, beggars and God: the concept of miracle in Stanisław Szukalski's short story "The Mute Singer" | 336 |

SOURCES / MATERIALS

| | |
|---|-----|
| Anna Mieszkowska, A letter to Juliusz Sakowski | 343 |
| Jan W. Sienkiewicz, Colourful contour and periodic contrast? Marian Bohusz-Szysko to Józef Jarema | 346 |
| Mirosław A. Supruniuk, Everyday life customs in Great Britain – an instruction for Polish soldiers from 1940 | 351 |

MEMOIRS / BIOGRAPHIES

| | |
|---|-----|
| Mirosław A. Supruniuk, Two printers deserving a ballade. Krystyna Bednarczyk (1923–2011) | 361 |
| Karolina Famulska-Ciesielska, Ida Fink (1921–2011) | 369 |
| Anna Mieszkowska, Włada Majewska (1911–2011) | 372 |
| Joanna Rostropowicz-Clark, In search of the lost house. Danuta Mostwin (1921–2010) | 383 |
| Czesław Karkowski, An indefatigable activist. Zygmunt Nagórski (1912–2011) | 387 |
| Arnold Klónczyński, A Pole of Swedish descent and a Swede in one quarter. Andrzej Nils Ugglå (1940–2011) | 391 |
| Jan W. Sienkiewicz, The artist of beauty not only in glass bewitched. Aleksander Werner (1920–2011) | 394 |

REVIEWS / POLEMICS

| | |
|--|-----|
| Ewa Bobrowska, Around the exhibition "Polonia. Les Polonais en France depuis 1830" in the Museum of Immigration History in Paris—curator's reflections and dilemmas | 397 |
| Jan W. Sienkiewicz, Art in exile in false mirror in St John's Centre in Gdańsk. (Art in Exile. Gotlib—Ruszkowski—Topolski—Żuławski. From the collection of Tomasz Zieleniewski, elab. Anna Zalewska, Gdańsk 2011) | 407 |
| Katarzyna Lewandowska, Insubordination of Leonor Fini. (Aside the exhibition in the Museum of Literature in Warsaw) | 411 |

PROPOSITIONS

| | |
|---|-----|
| Jan W. Sienkiewicz, An image of native land in the creativity of Polish London's artists | 415 |
| Tadeusz Gromada, The farewell speech by the Chairman of The Polish Institute of Arts and Sciences of America | 421 |